

Portland State University Faculty Senate “Districts”

Fall 2011

The PSU constitution specifies that, within each senate division, there should be one faculty senate representative for every twenty members of the full faculty. The constitution, however, provides no means for any given faculty member to determine which senator is their representative. Nor is there a means for any given senator to determine which faculty they are expected to represent.

This document is part of an effort to close these gaps and strengthen the connection between the senate and the faculty. Specifically, this document provides a list of senate districts, one for each sitting senator, that identifies a specific group of faculty members in that senator’s division. This list has been produced by a mechanical process that assigns faculty to districts using a round-robin algorithm to ensure uniform distribution within each division. Although these districts have no official or formal standing, the executive committee hopes that, by publishing this list, we will bring a more personal component to the work of the Senate, allowing individual senators to get a better sense of who they might be representing, and providing a default point of contact with senate for all members of the faculty. (Note, however, that faculty are welcome to bring issues to the attention of Senate through any sitting senator, regardless of whether that senator is part of their district.)

This district lists shown here were generated from data resulting from the Senate election in Spring 2011, including the list of people that were certified as members of the faculty at that time. As such, the lists are already likely to be somewhat out of date. Moving forward, we expect to produce a new list of districts after each election process. As a side-effect of publishing this list, we also expect that it will be easier to identify and correct information that is out of date, including, for example, cases where faculty members have been placed in the wrong division.

The executive committee intends to monitor, evaluate, and evolve the use of senate districts over a period of several years so as to determine how they can be most useful and effective. We warmly invite any feedback and suggestions that might contribute to this process via email to the Secretary of the Faculty (andrews@pdx.edu) or on the web at <http://www.pdx.edu/faculty-senate/contact>.
