We invite all graduate and undergraduate students from any university to attend and participate in the annual student colloquium of the Department of Asian Languages and Literature at the University of Washington. Although we are a department of language and literature, we are open to papers in ANY discipline. The only requirement is that it be generally about “Asia” (South, Southeast, Central, East, etc.). This is a great opportunity for students to practice formal academic presentations in a low-key, no pressure atmosphere. Get feedback on your current work and learn about what your fellow students are up to.

Abstracts/Proposals due by April 3rd, 2014 to: asianl colloquium@gmail.com