Great teachers begin at PSU

The Graduate Teacher Education Program prepares outstanding teachers who are strong in subject matter knowledge, expert in instructional decision-making and practices, capable of serving students and families from a wide range of cultural and linguistic backgrounds, family structures, and abilities, and committed to educational excellence and equity in the service of fair and humane schools and society.

Working collaboratively with several academic departments at Portland State University and with some 20 school districts in the metropolitan Portland area, GTEP is recognized for its leadership in graduate teacher preparation, teacher professional development, and research.
