Singers to contemplate 'immortality'

From the music of Felix Mendelssohn to Budi Susanto Yohanes of Indonesia, Portland State choirs will give an "Immortal" fall concert in three performances Nov. 22 and Nov. 24. The Portland State Chamber Choir, Man Choir, and Vox Femina will sing under the direction of Ethan Sperry and Joan Szymko. In addition to historical classics, the choirs will perform Szymko's mystical "Illumina le Tenebre." The concerts are at 7:30 p.m. both days and at 4 p.m. on Nov. 24 at St. Stephens Catholic Church, 1112 SE 41st. Tickets are $12 and available from the PSU Box Office. READ MORE

PSU, Clackamas Community College renew agreement

Today President Wim Wiewel and Clackamas Community College President Joanne Truesdell will sign a renewed co-admission agreement on CCC's Oregon City campus. Since 1997, more than 500 students have benefitted from the co-admission agreement, which creates a seamless pathway for students who start at CCC and plan to finish their bachelor's degree at PSU. Three free performances of The Natasha Plays

What's it like to be a 16-year-old girl in Russia today? Performances of The Natasha Plays: I Won and Natasha's Dream provide the "explosive" answer. Professor Karin Magaldi directs the free performances Thursday through Saturday, Nov. 21-23, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln Hall Studio Theatre. The two short plays will be followed by talkbacks, including the playwright Yaroslava Pulinovich, who will join the discussion on Nov. 21 via Skype from Russia. READ MORE

Child care assistance for student-parents

The Jim Sells Child Care Assistance Program has more than half a million dollars available to help Portland State University students pay for child care — five-and-a-half times the amount allotted by the Student Fee Committee last year. In addition, the subsidy now pays for child care both on and off campus. READ MORE

New certificate program in social innovation

The PSU Impact Entrepreneurs program in January is launching a new Business of Social Innovation professional certificate program. The mostly online program is a recipient of the PSU Provost's Challenge award through reThink PSU and is believed to be the first of its kind worldwide. Students in the one-year program will learn to design and launch businesses or initiatives that take on social and environmental problems. READ MORE

Learn about current work in conflict resolution

Faculty and students in the Conflict Resolution Graduate Program are sharing their research, community projects and scholarly writing in a new, informal, quarterly panel discussion. The first presentation is from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 20, in 387 Neuberger Hall. Rachel Cunliffe will present her explorations on building restorative capacity in capital case systems, and Barbara Tint and Mary Zinkin will be discussing their work and current chapter in a peace psychology text to be published in November.

Recycling water bottles and mugs

A new campus initiative is recycling forgotten reusable water bottles and coffee mugs rather than throwing them away. The containers come from PSU computer labs, where students are required to leave them at the entrance. However, some students don't remember to pick them back up. Through a student initiative, cleverly named "Mug Runners," unclaimed containers are being collected from the Millar Library computer lab, washed, and donated to the ReUse Room in 180 Cramer Hall. ReUse Room in 180 Cramer Hall. Organizers expect to expand collection to the computer labs in Neuberger Hall and the Broadway this winter. READ MORE

Free science lecture tickets

Free tickets are available from the PSU Box Office for the upcoming Linus Pauling Memorial Lecture, "A Future of Radical Abundance: Nanotechnology Transforming Material Civilization," featuring Eric Drexler. The lecture is at 7 p.m. on Nov. 20 in the First Congregational Church, 1126 SW Park.
