Participate in a national service-learning community from any location

Portland State University is internationally renown for letting knowledge serve. Students, faculty, administrators, and community partners from around the world connect with PSU each year to learn programmatic, teaching, learning, and engaged scholarship techniques of service-learning. Through this program, you will gain high impact strategies for how to teach, coordinate, lead, research, and assess service-learning for educational improvement and community enhancement.

The program is designed for:

- College staff and administrators who (or who want to) coordinate and direct various forms of civic engagement
- Faculty/Instructors at colleges and teachers in K12 schools interested in connecting academic content with experiential and community-based learning and service activities
- Community professionals interested in connecting non-profit agencies, NGOs, and social service organizations with colleges and schools.
