Reducing Homelessness at PSU

National research suggests that 10-14% of university students are currently experiencing homelessness.

PSU students and employees experience homelessness and housing insecurity, but it’s unclear how many and who is most at risk.

PSU’s Committee for improving Student Food Security found that 54% of students experienced food insecurity at PSU, which puts them at a higher risk for housing insecurity and homelessness.

This week, HRAC launched a survey of PSU students and employees to assess housing insecurity, food insecurity, and homelessness. This is one of the first surveys in the nation to include employees.

The survey will be open for four weeks, and students and employees who complete it will have a chance to enter a raffle for one of several $100 Visa gift cards.

“We must understand how hunger and homelessness impact our campus community,” said Interim President Stephen Percy. “This survey will help us understand our most vulnerable students and employees and shape university support in the future.”
