Enroll in one of the hybrid courses below and set yourself up for success! These courses focus on helping advanced-level multilingual students refine their written and oral academic English communication skills.

These courses are limited to 20 students. The cost of each course is $482, which is more affordable than the 1 credit non-resident graduate tuition ($671). Students who wish to access IELP Learning Center resources will be able to opt-in with $140 fee. The resources include but not limited to weekly individual tutoring and conversation partner sessions.

Hybrid Course Offerings for Graduate Students

LING 457: Graduate Writing Workshop, CRN: 15402, 2 credits
This seminar-style class helps graduate students navigate their existing writing projects. Students set writing goals, receive feedback on their writing projects from classmates, and discuss topics related to academic writing practices, such as using clear and precise grammar or vocabulary, and integrating outside literature as support for an argument. These classes are supplemented with regular consultations with the instructor and for individual student support. (Fridays, 10:15AM-12:05PM and Online) Instructor: Linnea Spitzer, linneas@pdx.edu

LING 199: Grammar Refresher for Academic Writing, CRN: 15579, 2 credits
This 2-credit hybrid course will cover several essential aspects of grammar for academic writing. The goal of this class is to help students recognize and apply grammatical features commonly used in academic writing. We will work on identifying, applying, and self-correcting these forms in writing. This class is targeted towards advanced multilingual speakers of English, but all students, undergraduate and graduate, resident and international, are welcome. (Tuesdays, 12:00PM-1:50PM and Online) Instructor: Linnea Spitzer, linneas@pdx.edu
