Offered by The Nonprofit Institute at Portland State University and taught by experienced practitioner-scholars, the Professional Certificate in Nonprofit Program Evaluation provides students with a solid foundation in the core concepts and practices of program evaluation as well as the opportunity to apply them in their organizations.

The program is designed to support nonprofit professionals in the workplace. How does it work?

The program offers:

• A cohort-based program limited to 10-15 students.

• 6 in-person classes over a 7-month period, beginning in October and ending in April. These include 3 full-day sessions of information delivery and peer learning, and 3 half-day sessions of closely guided, hands-on practice.

• Individualized mentoring and coaching between sessions.

• Synthesis of learning through the design of an evaluation framework and methodology for a relevant program with each students.
