COURSE DESCRIPTION AND GOALS
Sports and athletics are an important part of our society and culture. Many people are involved in sporting events as participants or spectators, and many of us are active in exercise and organized athletic programs. Sociologists study sports in several ways; from the individual perspective, the team perspective, and from the perspective of society as a whole. Sports reflect the values of society and culture, and we find in sports all of the issues we have in our society, both good and bad. Not only do we find incidents of racism, sexism, and violence in sports, but we also find positive aspects such as teamwork, leadership, and cooperation.

TEXTBOOK
Title: Sports in Society
Authors: Grant Farr, Ian Farr, and Danny Hannun
COURSE ORGANIZATION: This course is organized in weekly learning modules. Each week begin at 7:00 am Monday morning and end at 11:30 Sunday night.

- Quizzes: Quizzes are available in the textbook at the end of each chapter. You must complete and submit each week’s quiz by Sunday night at 11:30. After you take the quiz make sure that you hit the submit command to submit your quiz. Once the deadline has passed, you cannot go back to the quiz.
- Original Post: Each student will be assigned to a discussion group and must submit an original post to that group by no later than 11:30 pm Thursday night of each week. Posts must be written on the topic of the week that they are assigned, so that other students may have adequate time to formulate responses. Discussion topics are posted on D2L each week.
- Discussion Posts: Discussion posts are responses to original post made by others in your discussion group. Your discussion posts are due between Friday morning and 11:30 pm Sunday night.

COURSE SCHEDULE
The reading assignment will correspond with the book in the following manner.

3. Week Three  Chapter Three:  International Sports
4. Week Four  Chapter Four:  Race, Ethnicity in Sports
5. Week Five  Chapter Five:  Indigenous Nations and Mascots

ONLINE VIDEOS AND READINGS FOR DISCUSSION POSTS
Each week, in addition to your textbook, there are a number of online videos and readings to help you prepare your discussion post. These readings and videos cover topics related to the weekly discussion topics. You are not required to read or watch all the material but should choose a number of them to add and enhance your discussion posts. Due to the constant stream of events in the sporting world, you may also choose to incorporate material of your own choosing.

DISCUSSION POSTS:
DISCUSSION GROUPS: You are assigned to a discussion group: To find your discussion groups, go to activities then to discussions. You will remain in the same discussion group for the whole term.

ORIGINAL DISCUSSION POSTS:
Each week there will be a discussion topic for you write about. These discussion posts are the cornerstone of this course. Each week will contain an opportunity for you to engage your classmates in one discussion forum prompt. You are expected to use your textbook and the optional online videos and readings in order to respond to the prompt sufficiently. Citations are required for information or ideas you get from written material, but your opinion and insight is also expected. Your weekly discussion post is worth 40 points and must be posed by by 11:30 pm Thursday each week.
Here is how the discussion post will be graded.

0: No activity; did not respond to the forum and/or did not respond by the listed deadlines

20: Crafted an original response to the prompt but did not provide feedback to 3 or more classmates

40: Crafted an original response to the prompt and provided meaningful feedback to 3 or more classmates.

More details are available in the Discussion Prompt How To Folder on D2L

IMPORTANT: You should think of your original discussion posts as short, formal writing assignments. As in all academic writing, you should make sure the tone is professional and not too casual. AND, you must properly cite your sources. Here are a few rules that are sometimes forgotten:

- The original post is at least 500 words and introduces a new idea or is a meaningful response to the prompt. Try to think a bit more analytically about the topic/topics at hand. What questions do you have? What qualms do you have?
- Ideas or thoughts that are not your original ideas should be properly cited, indicating the author. This applies to both paraphrasing and quoting. Standard citation style should be used.

If you are not familiar with these rules of writing, you should consult a writing manual or seek support from the PSU Writing Center or a tutor. Here is a good online resource you may use - https://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/679/01/.

RESPONSE POSTS:
Response posts are your reaction to the original discussion posts of other people in your group. You response posts must be posted by 11:30 pm Sunday night of each week. No points will be given for submissions posted after midnight Saturday. In order to get a 20/20 on your response posts, respond thoughtfully to other people's ORIGINAL posts. When responding to another person’s post, please either 1) expand the thought, 2) add additional insights, or 3) respectfully disagree and explain why. There is no word count for response posts.

Perhaps you can help the other students think about an issue in a new or different way or probe them as to why they believe a certain idea. Make connections to the readings. Pull in a couple of points or ideas from the week's assigned chapters and reference the page numbers.

Push yourselves, give things more thought, and remember that it's okay to question traditional thoughts if you see something differently. Your posts will be evaluated based on the evidence of thoughtful consideration of the course material and group members’ comments. If you earn 40 points, this means that you are making outstanding original posts AND three outstanding responses to your classmates’ original posts.

QUIZZES
Each week, you are required to complete a quiz covering the week’s course materials. The quizzes consist of 10 multiple choice and 10 true/false questions. The quizzes are in the textbook at the end of each chapter. Quizzes are open book and cover material from the textbook and online reading.
Quizzes are available beginning at 7am each Monday morning and must be completed prior to 11:30 pm on Sunday nights. Since the quizzes are about the assigned reading I suggest you complete the assigned readings before taking the quizzes.

EXTRA CREDIT
Students may choose either of the following prompts and earn up to an additional 20 points. The paper should be between two and three pages double spaced. Papers should be submitted in the dropbox found on D2L prior to 11:30 pm Sunday of week ten. Late submissions will not be accepted.

Sporting Event: Attend any sporting event in person (Televised events will not do) and write a paper on the event viewed through a sociological lens. To review the way sociologists see the world review chapter 1 of the textbook. The analysis of the sporting event is up to you, but in you could approach the sporting event from a functionalist perspective, a conflict perspective, a symbolic perspective, or a Marxist perspective.

Book Review: Read the book 40 Million Dollar Slave by Willian Rhoden. Write a paper discussing the ideas in the book. (the book is available on-line and at the PSU Library).
