Students were asked to complete a survey letting us know their space needs for their student organization work. The survey was sent to 750 students. 48 completed the survey.

The top five space priorities for student leaders were

1. Small meeting rooms (10 people or less)
2. Medium meeting rooms (10-15 people)
3. Large, private storage for groups
4. Private student group offices
5. Large meeting rooms (15+ people)

Of those that completed,

- 59% were part of a student group with an office
- 41% were part of a student group without an office

For students who have access to a student group office, the top uses were:

1. Meetings (81%)
2. Storage (70%)
3. Computer Use (53%)
4. Working on student group projects (22%)

The top 4 perceived challenges of the current space were:

1. Lack/cost of event space (35%)
2. Lack of large storage space (29%)
3. Limited access to meeting rooms (26%)
4. Lack of private meeting spaces (26%)

Students were asked what is important to keep in mind when designing the space. Of all the responses, these ten themes were the most prevalent:

1. Need private storage
2. Need meeting rooms that can be checked out
3. Rooms should be appropriate sizes for use
4. There should be equity in who has space
5. Good location and visibility
6. Need performance and practice spaces
7. Need more office spaces
8. Have a shared, open lounge for student leaders
9. Computers available
10. Better accessibility
