Merging disciplines to enhance innovation.

Melissa Appleyard of the School of Business Administration studies how scientists from different backgrounds work together in interdisciplinary fields like nanotechnology, where chemistry, physics, and biology meet. She examines management practices that support the successful combination of different knowledge bases into new perspectives—and ultimately innovations that reach the marketplace.

> pdx.edu/insidepsu