Leslie Hammer, director of the Center for Work-Family Stress, Safety, and Health, in the department of psychology, looks for ways to reduce conflict between the job and home life. Family-friendly management and an empowered workforce can combine to minimize worker tension, improve health, and enhance productivity, creating better work and family environments for all.

worker WELLNESS
Resolving stress between work and family.

Leslie Hammer, director of the Center for Work-Family Stress, Safety, and Health, in the department of psychology, looks for ways to reduce conflict between the job and home life. Family-friendly management and an empowered workforce can combine to minimize worker tension, improve health, and enhance productivity, creating better work and family environments for all.

> pdx.edu/insidepsu