For the thousands of teens with disabilities emancipated from foster care each year, the onset of adulthood presents unique and daunting challenges. Social Work professor Laurie Powers studies how best to involve these youth in determining their own path forward. Through research and community partnerships, Powers is empowering foster youth to transition to successful adult life.

> pdx.edu/insidepsu