WELCOME TO PORTLAND STATE UNIVERSITY

See how different is done.

Explore our urban campus in the heart of downtown Portland. Our campus in the heart of Portland is the testbed for tomorrow. We do more than study the issues. We get in them and figure out how to do something different. Running with our ideas and discoveries. Making our convictions into commitments.

To all people, of all backgrounds and circumstances

Join Oregon's urban public research university, where students from all backgrounds challenge what is with what could be.

LAND ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Portland State University is located in the heart of downtown Portland, Oregon in Multnomah County. We honor the Indigenous people whose traditional and ancestral homelands we stand on, the Multnomah, Kathlamet, Clackamas, Tumwater, Watlala bands of the Chinook, the Tualatin Kalapuya, and many other indigenous nations of the Nchi wana or Columbia River. It is important to acknowledge the ancestors of this place and to recognize that we are here because of the sacrifices forced upon them. In remembering these communities, we honor their legacy, their lives, and their descendants.

ORIENTATION

503-725-5511 | pdx.edu/orientation

Welcome to PSU! We're so glad you've taken the time to visit us. The Welcome Center is the best place to start (and finish your tour). Our admissions student representatives are here to help answer your questions about Portland State, so ask us anything. Come by any time during our open hours to speak with an admissions student representative. The welcome center is also where our customer service center is located.

TRANSPORTATION & PARKING SERVICES

The Academic & Student Recreation Center (ASRC) is home to PSU's Campus Recreation department and facilities, Outdoor Program, School of Social Work, Enrollment Management, Transportation and Parking, and the Bike Hub.

Campus Recreation

PSU's facilities and programs provide students and the campus community excellent opportunities for exercise and campus engagement while prioritizing inclusivity and access. Funded by student fees, the facility includes a two-court gymnasium, a three-lane one-mile running track, a synthetic gymnasium-floor equipped with dasher boards for floor hockey and indoor soccer, a large cardiovascular and weight training facility, two multi-purpose group fitness suites, an aquatic complex including a lap pool and whirlpool spa, new locker rooms, a bouldering wall, and working space for student clubs and intramural sports.

School of Social Work

PSU's School of Social Work offers one of the top social work programs in Oregon and is ranked in the top 35 in the United States. Founded by the Oregon Legislature in 1962 to serve Oregon's social work education needs, the program serves over 1,000 students each year in Portland, Eugene, and Salem, and online.

Office of Undergraduate Admissions and New Student Programs

In addition to the Welcome Center, the Enrollment Management Division is on the fifth floor of the ASRC. Enrollment Management includes Undergraduate Admissions, Campus Visits, Orientation, and Student Financial Aid and Scholarships (located in FMH). Stop by and get your questions answered about everything related to prospective students like the application process, financial aid and orientation.

Transportation and Parking Services and the Bike Hub

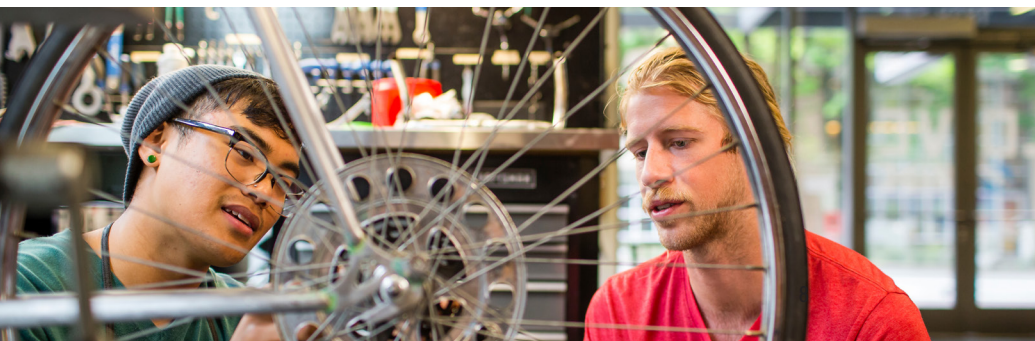

One of the bonuses of going to a school in the middle of a city is that there are tons of transportation options. Sure, you could drive to campus, but did you know that PSU students get to ride the Streetcar for FREE? The streetcar glides fluidly through the middle of the Urban Plaza (just look outside the ASRC) and Park Blocks and there are a bunch of BIKETOWN stations on campus. If you are commuting from further out you can take the bus or MAX (Portland's light-rail system) and PSU students get a discounted rate. There are several stations on campus. One is located right outside the door of the Transportation Office on 6th Avenue. The Bike Hub is next door and offers discounted bicycle parts, maintenance tutorials and repair services, in addition to information and facilities for bike parking and storage for Portland State's large bicycle commuter population.

The Outdoor Program

Maybe you want to get outdoors. If so, the Outdoor Program offices are located here as well. Our program is the oldest one in the country, it's been around for 50 years. Getting outdoors might seem difficult when we're in the middle of a city, which is why they coordinate numerous trips and outings throughout the year. If you've never backpacked, hiked, camped or kayaked, then stop in their offices to learn about their guided trips. You can also rent gear from them and go explore the beautiful Pacific Northwest on your own.

The ASRC is LEED Gold certified with sustainability features that include photovoltaic panels on the roof, electricity generating elliptical machines, plumbing and fire protection systems powered by rainwater, and numerous heat recovery systems. The building is also home to the City of Portland Archives and Records, classrooms, a lactation room, and multiple all-gender restrooms.

PSU BOOKSTORE

503-226-2631 | bkstr.com/portlandstatestore

Alright, it's time to begin this tour. Make your way out the doors nearest to the Welcome Center and you'll find yourself in the Urban Plaza. See bricks, sculptures, and the Streetcar? You're in the right place. The Urban Plaza is a great place to unwind, get some lunch, and people-watch as students make their way to and from class. The TriMet Bus, Light Rail and Streetcar have stops in or along the Urban Plaza, making it the transportation hub for the University.

PSU Bookstore

Right now is a good time to check out the bookstore, so you can leave campus with some PSU gear and smell the sweet aroma of textbooks and school supplies to get you in the mood for all the studying you'll do here. The PSU Bookstore also participates in a price-match program, so if you find textbooks at a lower price elsewhere, the Bookstore will match the price.

COLLEGE OF URBAN & PUBLIC AFFAIRS

503-725-4043 | pdx.edu/cupa

After you get your PSU gear, wander back to the Urban Plaza, face north and gaze up at the College of Urban and Public Affairs' 9-story home, the Urban Center Building.

Students are drawn to the College of Urban and Public Affairs—affectionately known as CUPA—because they want to enact change. CUPA is among the oldest colleges of its kind in the country. CUPA's academic programs prepare students to be effective leaders, collaborators, and problem-solvers. The college houses two schools—the Mark O. Hatfield School of Government and the Nohad A. Toulan School of Urban Studies and Planning—and six academic units: Criminology & Criminal Justice, Economics, International & Global Studies, Political Science, Public Administration, and Urban Studies & Planning. The Urban Center Building also has its own library, study space, conference rooms, and event space (including a gallery and covered rooftop patio).

OHSU-PSU SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH

503-494-8257 | pdx.edu/public-health

As you exit the Bookstore, look southeast to see the Vanport Building. Our newest building, this is a seven-story condominium founded through a partnership between PSU, the City of Portland, Portland Community College (PCC), and Oregon Health & Science University (OHSU). Here, you'll find the City of Portland's Bureau of Planning and Sustainability (Floor 7), PCC's Dental Services Programs (Floors 2 & 3), PSU's College of Education (Floors 2 & 4), and the PSU/OHSU School of Public Health (Floors 2, 5 & 6). In addition to its academic, research, and civic facilities, it also has a dental-clinic and low-cost mental health services for the general public.

The Vanport Building is named after the City of Vanport, which was the home to the Vanport Extension Center (what would eventually become) Portland State University).

University Services Building

 Lactation Station

On your way to Lincoln Hall, you'll make your way past the north side of the University Services Building (USB), where you'll find the delivery loading dock for the university. On the south side, you can access the entrances that lead to the PSU mail room, Capital Projects and Construction, Facilities and Property Management and Materials Management Services.

On the northwest side of the USB, you can stop in to the Green Zebra grocery for refreshments, lunch, or groceries in between classes. They have a salad bar and Kombucha on tap. How very Portland of them.

COLLEGE OF THE ARTS

503-725-3105 | pdx.edu/the-arts

Lincoln Hall was the first building that PSU occupied when then Vanport College moved to the South Park Blocks in 1952. Enter Lincoln Hall at the Broadway Avenue entrance and you'll see the LEED Platinum certification and the Broadway Tower addition (which was completed after a seismic retrofit in 2011). The building opened for Portland State classes in September 1952 and served as its primary building until the construction of Cramer Hall in 1955.

The College of the Arts (COTA) is located in Lincoln Hall and houses the Schools of Music and Theater, and Film. This means that while making your way through the gorgeous interior you are greeted with art installations and the sound of music—everything from choirs to jazz bands. Lincoln has multiple performance and practice spaces, including a nearly 500-seat auditorium that features concerts, performances, and lectures. Fun fact: The practice rooms on the ground floor, adjacent to the elevators are where the harpists practice because the harps are too large to bring to higher levels.

INSTRUCTIONS

Take the elevator to the third floor and then head west, follow the hallway around to the south side of the building and take the sky bridge across to Cramer Hall. Note: Sky Bridges between buildings are open during regular business hours Monday-Friday.

503-725-5890 | pdx.edu/unst

THE WRITING CENTER

pdx.edu/writing-center

Cramer Hall was the first new building constructed for the university and is named after Portland State University's first president, John Francis Cramer, who helped the university transition to a fully-accredited four-year college. Every floor of the hall has multiple study nooks, perfect for downtime between classes.

College of Liberal Arts and Sciences

Cramer Hall houses the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences (CLAS) main offices, providing the intellectual foundation for the liberal and professional education of students at Portland State and for the enhancement of the quality of life in the Portland metropolitan area. Spanning 24 academic units and disciplines in the sciences, social sciences, and humanities, CLAS is proud to have biology professors creating new drugs to combat deadly diseases; psychology students and faculty finding ways to prevent and address sexual violence; and world languages and literatures faculty examining the influence of language and culture in our global communities.

University Studies

Cramer Hall is also home to University Studies, PSU's nationally-recognized general education program. University Studies provides students with integrated, connected learning experiences that lay the foundation for lifelong intellectual development. Extending through all four years, the program teaches you how to think critically, communicate effectively, and gain a broad awareness of the human experience to instill a deep sense of responsibility in yourself, your peers and your community.

The Writing Center

Located on the first floor of Cramer, the Writing Center is a tutoring resource for students who wish to improve their academic writing. Strong writing skills are essential to your success at PSU. Writing Center staff help students understand and meet PSU's writing requirements as well as provide writing courses and offer writing assistance.

INSTRUCTIONS

Take the elevators at the south/central side of the building to the first floor and exit the building. Turn right and you'll find yourself looking at the iconic PSU Park Blocks. BEFORE you go frolicking through the greenery, take a gander at the building south of Cramer Hall. This is Smith Memorial Student Union, known affectionately as Smith, but often referred to in text simply as SMSU.

Smith Memorial Student Union

 Lactation Station

Smith is where you'll find most of the activities and services PSU offers to enhance your academic experience. You may have heard that Portland is a food city. PSU students get privileged access to some of the famous spots visitors to the area stand in line for: Ring of Fire, 503 Burger, and Bowery Bagels. They're all here. And if you have a dining plan, you can spend those dining dollars in Smith's Kitchen, and skip the tourist lines.

Smith has more than just food; the building is complete with art galleries, a bowling alley, The Vanguard (PSU's student newspaper), an intimate concert venue, a quiet study area, and student resources to explore.

Smith Memorial Student Union is named after Michael J. Smith, who helped lead Portland State's G.E. College Bowl (a popular quiz show in the 1960s) team to victory in 1965. The team's undefeated winning streak was credited by Time magazine as being a major factor in influencing the Oregon state legislature to fund graduate programming at the University.

Cultural & Resource Centers

The building is home to many of the on-campus student groups and support systems, including:

- Cultural Resource Centers: La Casa Latina, Multicultural Student Center, Native American Student & Community Center, Pacific Islander, Asian, and Asian American Student Center, Pan-African Commons, and the Middle East, North Africa, South Asian Initiative.
- Disability Resource Center
- Diversity and Multicultural Student Services (DMSS)

SALP coordinates programming that integrates students' leadership and academic experiences through a variety of activities with the goal of educating students to be ethical, socially just and civically engaged leaders on campus and in the community. SALP programs include: student media (PSU's newspaper, radio and TV stations), student government, student leadership, student community engagement and the student sustainability center.

Dean of Student Life

pdx.edu/dean-student-life

The Office of the Dean of Student Life is a resource for all students, faculty, and staff as they navigate Portland State University. This office serves as a reference point for those seeking to resolve issues of concern or advance initiatives designed to enhance the student experience.

INSTRUCTIONS

Make your way through the building and see for yourself the diversity of activities that happen there. Once you've seen Smith, head back outside into the famous PSU Park Blocks.

Park Blocks

You may be surprised to have found yourself in this green oasis, right in the middle of the city. This hub of our urban campus is built on twelve tree-lined Park Blocks. The Park Blocks do more than provide refreshment and peace in an urban environment; they offer a meeting ground for students, an outdoor study area, and a space for everything from arts events to a farmer's market.

The PSU Park Blocks make up the oldest park in the city, donated for public use in 1852 by Daniel H. Lowndale, a Portland landowner and tanner. At the time the area was little more than an unimproved roadway on the outskirts of the city center. In 1877, the first attempts at landscaping the park began, and 104 Lombardy poplars and American elms were planted under the supervision of florist and landscape designer, Louis G. Pfunder. The close relationship between the university and the Park Blocks was further strengthened in 1973 when a campus redesign closed off the southern tip of the South Park Blocks to traffic, creating a gracious, wooded center for university life.

On Saturdays, the Park Blocks become the stage for the Portland Farmers Market, open year-round. Over 200 vendors sell everything from fresh fruit and veggies to smoked salmon. There is always music and, of course, glorious free samples. It's all perfectly Portland.

PSU Green Fact: PSU is taking advantage of a variety of opportunities to install more energy efficient lighting and equipment. The outdoor lights in the Park Blocks are one example of these advancements. Not only are the lamps more energy efficient, but they guide the light downwards, reducing light pollution and also restoring historical elegance to the South Park Blocks.

INSTRUCTIONS

Follow the walking path to the west side of the Park Blocks and make your way south. From here you are welcome to venture off the planned tour route and visit the Science Research and Teaching Center, Epler Hall and Hoffmann Hall. If not, skip to stop 17 to continue the route.

PHYSICS DEPARTMENT

503-725-3812 | pdx.edu/physics

Replete with state of the art lab and office spaces, the recently-renovated Science and Research Teaching Center (SRTC) houses many of PSU's scientific departments including biology, chemistry, environmental science and physics. One of the larger buildings on campus, the SRTC includes lecture halls, teaching labs, research centers, and even PSU's Museums of Vertebrate and Invertebrate Biology. The building is also home to the Rae Selling Berry Seed Bank, which collects and preserves plant species native to our beautiful Pacific Northwest. Students have the opportunity to volunteer and work with the program, integrating the world of botany into their studies.

On the biology side of things, a PSU professor is the head of the Marine Mammal Stranding Network. Stranded marine life are saved from being lost in various places. If marine life is lost, they are taken back to this building and studied by PSU professors and students.

Stephen Epler Hall

Named for the founder of Portland State University and a relatively new building on campus, Stephen Epler is primarily a residence hall that houses modern studio apartments, all of which include a private kitchenette and bath. The hall features the Urban Honors Living Community on the two top floors and several classrooms on the ground level. Little Vikings Child Care Center for students or faculty with young children is also located inside this building.

Stephen Epler is one of PSU's greenest buildings. In addition to using ventilation systems and windows that allow for maximum energy savings, the building demolished to build Stephen Epler was dismantled in such a way that any and all usable materials were reintegrated into the new structure. Rainwater is cleverly filtered from the roof to feed planter boxes and is used in water features along the plaza outside the building. The building represents an attempt to make PSU a university focused on reclamation, restoration, and recycling.

Hoffmann Hall

The building's full title is George C. Hoffmann Hall, named after one of the first professors at the college when it was still known as the Vanport Extension Center (he would later suggest changing the name to Portland State). The hall houses the largest lecture hall on campus and hosts visiting speakers.

Walk of the Heroines

The Walk of the Heroines honors the many ways that women have contributed to the development of our families, our cities, our state, and our nation. Community members have contributed names of women that are engraved on the wall. Take a walk through and see if you recognize any of the heroic women who helped shape our history.

INSTRUCTIONS

Go to the corner of SW Park Avenue and Montgomery Street, where you'll see the iconic Simon Benson House.

SIMON BENSON HOUSE AND PSU'S ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

503-725-4948 | pdx.edu/alumni

The Simon Benson House, a landmark in PSU's South Park Blocks, may look like it has been there for years. However, this beautiful, century-old, Queen-Anne style home was moved in January 2000 from SW 11th and Clay to its current location where it was lovingly restored. It is now the home of the PSU Alumni Association.

With ornate architecture and vintage charm, the Simon Benson House is one of the highlights of the campus Park Blocks. The home originally belonged to historic timber millionaire, Simon Benson, probably most famous for his "Benson Bubblers" (drinking fountains), which you can find throughout downtown Portland and right in front of the house itself. If it's open, feel free to go inside and take a look around.

Blackstone Residence Hall

Blackstone, built in 1931, is one of nine PSU student residence halls. The 38,971 square foot Blackstone is a five-story structure with Egyptian Revival architectural elements. It was originally a residential apartment building designed by architect, Elmer E. Feig, for real estate developer, Harry Mittleman. Mittleman owned and operated the building until Portland Student Services in conjunction with Portland State acquired it in 1969 to serve exclusively as student housing. Blackstone houses non-first year students and contains 24 one-bedrooms, 10 studios, 13 sleepers and six furnished quad units.

16

Montgomery Residence Hall

 All gender restrooms

Montgomery Hall was originally the Martha Washington Hotel for Working Women. The Portland Women's Union (PWU) hired prominent Portland architect, Albert Ernest Doyle, to construct the Martha Washington after their first boarding house, Anna Mann Hall, was no longer able to meet housing demands. Completed in August 1920, the Martha Washington provided a safe and respectable residence for young, single women to live in Portland.

Portland State purchased the Martha Washington in 1982 as part of the effort to increase student housing opportunities on campus. Offering vintage on-campus housing, Montgomery Hall is a classic brick building right off the park blocks with 142 furnished, single-occupancy units. Residents also have access to laundry and kitchen common areas.

Housing tens of thousands of books and research resources, the Millar Library is a focal point of campus. With multiple computer labs, quiet group study rooms, presentation rooms, a tutoring center, laptop and calculator rental, and a cafe, the library has everything students need to hit the books and study effectively. The Library is open year-round with extended hours during finals week to help students prepare for exams.

The Learning Center

503-725-4448 | pdx.edu/tutoring

On the second floor of the library, the Learning Center is available to all students to receive tutoring in various subjects. In addition to helping you with your course work, TLC can assist in helping you develop successful learning strategies. You can also sign up to be a tutor. All services are free to PSU students.

As a bonus, students can also study in view of the large Copper Beech tree at the library's entrance. It is so beloved on campus that the architecture of the building was changed to accommodate it.

ATHLETICS

503-725-4000 | goviks.com

In 2018, a $52.1 million renovation and expansion of the building was completed which replaced a portion of the old building and rebuilt the portion of the building that sits closest to the Park Blocks. The new façade faces the Park Blocks and resembles a viking ship (the student section is affectionately called The Ship), now seating 3,000. The new building also includes 15,000 square feet for studying, tutoring and advising.

PSU is an NCAA Division I school and a member of the Big Sky Conference with competitive teams in 15 sports: men's football, women's softball, women's volleyball, women's soccer, and both men and women's teams in basketball, tennis, track/cross country and golf.

INSTRUCTIONS

At the southern end of Viking Pavilion take a left and head east across the Park Blocks. On your left sits Shattuck Hall, just south of Fariborz Maseeh Hall.

Shattuck Hall Architecture Studios

Shattuck Hall

ARCHITECTURE DEPARTMENT

503-725-8405 | pdx.edu/architecture

Originally built in 1917 as an elementary school, Shattuck Hall was acquired by Portland State University in 1969. One of oldest and most distinct buildings on campus, Shattuck Hall was designed by Floyd Naramore, a prolific architect in Portland's early history. It's no coincidence that the building now houses PSU's burgeoning School of Architecture. A remodel in 2008 turned the building itself into an architecture and design teaching tool by exposing everything from wiring and plumbing systems to the original plank-formed poured-in-place concrete structure. These additions made this building LEED Gold certified. The renovation even kept the original elementary school's old dance floor in place under the carpet in one of the lecture halls.

Native American Student and Community Center

NATIVE AMERICAN STUDENT & COMMUNITY CENTER

503-725-9695 | pdx.edu/dmss/nascc

Opened in 2003, the Native American Student & Community Center is the only one of its kind in the Portland metropolitan region, home to 20,000 American Indians and Alaska Natives. NASCC's mission is to provide a location where Native American, Alaskan Native, and Pacific Islander students connect with other students, faculty, staff and community members in an inclusive and supportive environment. The Center also welcomes the greater Native Community to PSU's campus, providing opportunities for shared learning and understanding. An aerial view of the NASCC reveals a salmon-shaped design of the building, which echoes the importance of nature within Native American culture.

The main entry on Jackson and Broadway leads to the Nimiipuutimt Gathering Place, a circular area in the center of the building flanked by six Douglas fir poles that extend through the roof. Additional spaces include a computer lab, classrooms, office space, meeting and conference rooms. Because the building occupied most of the available footprint, Nez Perce landscape artist, Brian McCormack, constructed a rooftop garden connected to the building by a ceremonial walkway. The garden features tribal medicinal and ceremonial plants identified in multiple native languages. The Center also includes a significant Native American art collection featuring prominent artists including Larry Ahvakana, Lillian Pitt, Doug Hyde, Preston Singletary, and Jim Jackson.

INSTRUCTIONS

HOUSING & RESIDENCE LIFE

503-725-2450 | pdx.edu/housing

Broadway Residence Hall is an 11 story student residence hall for first years located at the corner of SW Broadway and Jackson Street. Broadway is an L-shaped structure with its northern-wing extending to SW College Street and its eastern-wing to SW 6th Ave. There are classrooms and a computer laboratory located on the second floor and retail space dominates the ground floor. The housing portion of the building consists of 382 furnished studio apartments with a kitchenette and bath.

Broadway was completed in 2004 and achieved LEED Silver Certification for its environmentally friendly features which include: an 18,000 square foot Eco-roof, a climate responsive design to reduce reliance on energy consumptive mechanical and electrical systems, low flow water fixtures, high performance window glass, and less toxic room finishes. The Broadway received a 2005 BEST Award for Stormwater Management.

PSU's residence halls give students the opportunity to live affordably in the middle of one of the coolest cities in the country.

INSTRUCTIONS

Exit this building to SW 6th Avenue crossing to the east side of the street, continue north on SW 6th crossing SW College Ave. To your right is Ondine Residence Hall.

HOUSING & RESIDENCE LIFE

503-725-2450 | pdx.edu/housing

The Ondine Residence Hall is a 15-story high-rise comprised of 190 furnished suite-style units with shared kitchen and bath on floors 7–15, and 96 furnished double-occupancy studio rooms with a private bath but no kitchen on floors 3–6. The studios are part of the First Year Experience program. Upper class and transfer students are eligible for the suite-units. This building has it all; spectacular views of Mt. Hood and downtown Portland, laundry facilities, cable and telephone-ready rooms, a television lounge, parking (for an extra fee), and Victor's—a unique, all-you-care-to-eat style dining experience featuring a rotating menu as well as nightly dinner specials. This urban restaurant—the University's dining hall—offers fresh, local ingredients and home-style favorites as well as options for those looking for healthier dining, vegetarian, vegan and gluten-free options.

Located on the second floor of Ondine are classrooms and study space, as well as the University Success Office. USuccess offers in-hall academic support to students including group study space, success series events and writing support.

The accessible entrance is located in the back of the building.

INSTRUCTIONS

Continue heading north on SW 6th Ave toward the University Center Building and Student Health and Counseling Center. From here you are welcome to venture off the planned tour route and visit the Art Building and Annex, Maseeh College of Engineering and Computer Science and Fourth Ave Building. You can also skip the buildings and head to the 4th avenue food carts across the street from the Engineering building. If you want to continue on the planned tour route, skip to stop 27 to continue.

SCHOOL OF ART + DESIGN

503-725-3515 | pdx.edu/art-design

The Art Building & Annex served as the Bassist College and Art Institute beginning in September, 1976. Housing the School of Art and Design, the building contains sophisticated studio spaces and graphic design labs. The Art Building originally served as a bank and the Annex as a carriage house in the late 1920s. Currently, this building houses drawing and mixed media classrooms, an Art History lecture hall, MFA studios and galleries and The Green Room, which is a resource center for Graphic Design students.

PHILOSOPHY

503-725-3565 | pdx.edu/philosophy

These buildings, connected by a shared basement level, house the Engineering and Computer Science program, the Department of Philosophy, and the College of Education. The buildings are some of the most technologically-accomplished on campus, featuring countless engineering labs, including many sponsored by PSU partner Intel. There are even vending machines in the basement that dispense electronics and circuit board parts. As an added bonus, the building is right across from the Fourth Street food cart pod, providing international fare, a great place to stop off for a snack or lunch.

In addition to featuring many of the same sustainable design features as Epler Hall and the Broadway Building, the building showcases how natural systems can be used directly for both research and building operation. The building has a partially visible rainwater harvesting system that collects water for use in the hydraulics lab. Through the use of a geothermal system, the building also pumps both hot and cold groundwater to moderate the indoor temperature. This groundwater heat-pump system saves energy and eliminates the needs for a cooling tower. An example of contemporary architecture and sustainability, the building was awarded LEED Gold certification upon its completion.

Academic department offices include: Applied Linguistics, Communications, Judaic Studies, and Speech and Hearing Science.

Student Health and Counseling Center (SHAC), a mental and physical health resource for students. SHAC provides services for students for all their health needs. A staff of nurses, physicians, dentists, mental health professionals and customer service representatives are there exclusively to serve PSU students. There is even a Mind Spa that includes a state of the art massage chair!

The PSU Dental office, located on the 3rd floor of this building, is known to be one of the only Oregon Universities to have experienced, licensed dentists, compared to other universities that are staffed by students and faculty. This service is exclusive to students taking at least 1 credit. Each office in SHAC leaves students packed and prepared with things like free toothbrushes, floss, bandaids and cold medications.

SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

503-725-3712 | pdx.edu/business

An architecturally-beautiful and innovative building, the Karl Miller Center, completed in Fall 2017, houses the School of Business and the Office of International Affairs (which includes the Education Abroad program as well as the Center for Middle East Studies and the Institute for Asian Studies) as well as multi-use classrooms and lecture spaces. The Center is connected to multiple buildings on the eastern Park Blocks via PSU's sky bridge system.

The lofty, open design promotes natural light and the interior design is leading-edge and contemporary with plenty of study space and an amphitheater-style auditorium. All floors are visible at any time through the large central atrium and art installations hang from the ceiling and walls. A restaurant space is on the ground level, providing students a place to relax and unwind after a long day of classes. Upon completion in 2017, the building was awarded LEED Platinum status for outstanding sustainability and design.

INFORMATION

The last building on the list is located a short Street Car ride away (Robertson Life Sciences Building).

Located on the waterfront (just a quick Light Rail or Streetcar ride away from the Urban Plaza), the Robertson Life Sciences Building provides a unique space where students can interact with professionals and experience real-world research. The building has 17 new teaching labs and a 406-seat lecture hall as well as state-of-the-art research labs available to undergraduate students. Biology and Chemistry students will find it to be the perfect place to prepare for medical school or to pursue internship and research opportunities.

Continuing PSU's commitment to sustainability, the RLSB is LEED Platinum certified for its ecocentric design including green roofs, a stormwater collection system for non-potable water, and energy-efficient climate control and lighting.

This building is a collaborative educational effort between Oregon Health and Science University, Portland State University and Oregon State University.
